CRACK SHOTS TO ATTEND SHOOT TO BE HELD 2 DAYS

Squads From Washington, Baltimore And Wilmington To Take Part In First Meet.

With any kind of a decent break from the weatherman on Wednesday and Thursday, there is no question that the local gun club will be called on to handle one of the largest crowds of marksmen that have ever attended the local affairs, when the Susquehanna league shoot is held here. Every mail brings a list of entries, and already some of the best known shot gun men of the eastern part of the country have enrolled for either or both days.

Squad entries have been made by teams from Baltimore, Wilmington and Washington, and the list of entries to date include such well known names as "Steve" Crothers, J. Fred Betz, 3rd., L. D. Willis, John Fontaine, Dan Kessler, Dr. R. P. Bay, F. P. Williams and many others. The class of entrants indicates tough going for the class A shooters, and the other classes will be as well represented.

Class D is reserved for novices, and it is expected that many local shooters will avail themselves of the unusually liberal provisions in this as any shooter who can break a reasonable score is assured of a fine trophy. The trophies for the league event are now on display in Eckert's store window, and have attracted much favorable comment; both as to quality and quantity, no less than 55 different articles being offered. The club trophies to be offered on Thursday are on display in Blocher's store and are of the usual high grade, being solid gold and sterling silver cuff buttons and scarf pins.

The local squad will appear for the first time in their specially designed jackets, which are of heather blue, with a block "G" in the middle of the back. If this squad can come up to their remarkable exhibition of last week, when four of the five men broke their quota of saucers, the first team race of the season will undoubtedly come to Gettysburg. The squad will be made up of Bell, Bair, Miller and Bestwick, with fifth position to be fought out among the other local league members.

The rifle contest with the college co-eds is proving of great interest, and there will be a big crowd of entries for this night event. Coach Brantthaver of the co-ed team will be on the grounds Wednesday morning to enter all contestants, and if the list is too long, some will have to hustle out between target events in order to get the scores completed.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY IS STARTED

"Miss Somebody Else" Will be Given by Graduating Class to Defray Expenses.

"Miss Somebody Else," a farce comedy in four acts, selected as the annual play to be given by the senior class of the Gettysburg high school, is in rehearsal under the direction of Miss Kathryn Alwine, head of the English department.

The play will be given Tuesday evening, April 5, in the high school auditorium, and the proceeds used by the class to finance its various graduation activities, including a trip to Washington, D. C.

The leading parts will be taken by Miss Madolyn Culp and John Dickson. Miss Culp has appeared in several other home talent and high school performances and is a favorite of local theatre-goers.

The other members of the cast follow: "Celeste," a French maid, Miss Elizabeth Plank; "Ann Delavan," manager of the Tuxedobrook club house, Miss Elizabeth Mumper; "Mrs. Blainwood," a society leader, Miss Letha Harbaugh; "Fay Blainwood," a debutante, Miss Mary Jane Snyder; "Alice Stanley," Miss Kathryn Sheads; "Freda Mason," Miss Jessie Shealer; "Mrs. Herrick," a society matron, Miss Sylvia Knox; "Susan Ruggs," a maid, Miss Christine Eberhart; "Ralph Hastings," a crook, Robert Taylor; "John," a chauffeur, Edward Beard; "Jasper," an elderly scientist, Joseph Wible; "Sylvester Crane," George Neely, Jr.; "Bert Shaffer," Richard Hershey.

Spring Makes Debut Today Attired in Raincoat and Galoshes, But not for Long Chilly Reception Given Welcome Visitor, But "Weatherwise" All Agree That Killing Frost Is Now Past And That Good Weather Can Be Expected Within A Short Time.

The flowers that bloom in the spring, tra la, today probably wished they had put off blooming until summer. The vernal season, which started this morning at 9:59 o'clock, on the calendar, at least, found Old Man Winter still holding the reins.

Spring received a rather cool reception when she arrived this morning, and local residents felt sorry for the "little girl" for, if she arrived as scantily clad as the Spirit of Spring is usually personified, she's probably due for a change of heart as well as of clothing.

Nevertheless, many local residents feel that spring, although coolly received, took time and the Hagerstown almanac by the forelock and "blew in" last week when the weather cloaked her in early summer temperatures.

A generous amount of rain and, in some instances, a dash of snow greeted spring's appearance throughout the eastern United States today. And this, of course, all as casually as if the Spirit of Spring were accustomed to such things in Adams county whose climate often is acclaimed by local enthusiasts as the best in the country, if not in the world.

It is, indeed, a reflection on Adams county's boast, as well as on spring herself, but the weather-wise men, including Colonel E. B. Cope, profess themselves totally unable to do anything about it.

The only consolation available seems to be that there is no definite threat of a killing frost; that is, unless there are those who can take consolation in being reminded that the first day of spring last year was ushered in with benign smiles from the weather gods.

HereandThere

News and Comment by THE EDITOR

Saturday was a freakish day so far as the weather was concerned (and Sunday wasn't a great deal different). But Saturday, "April" showers, occasional thunder and lightning reminiscent of August, periods of sparkling sunshine and mild, invigorating, ozone-bearing zephyrs formed the program for the day.

And Sunday night was the last night of the calendar winter. Spring officially was ushered in today!

It is interesting to note that every day of March, since March 5, has been above normal in temperature, with the result that the month's excess is about 100 degrees.

There has been little lion-like about the weather so far this month. Some folks are predicting a "cold spell" before real spring arrives, but most of them are probably mere pessimists who see dire results for fruit and other crops.

Spring flowers can be looked for shortly.

Despite the rain Saturday, merchants had a busy day and night. The people of Adams county are determined to dress up for Easter and they are buying their spring tops early in order to get a choice selection of the latest Parisian styles and models.

They find plenty to choose from in Gettysburg store—men and women alike.

Sunday, April 17, is Easter, but most of the Easter shopping is being done right now. And the merchant who isn't getting the Easter business is asleep on the job.

Sentiment among students of Gettysburg college seems to be strongly in favor of Dr. Frank Kramer as the best qualified of the faculty members to succeed the late Jerome C. Jackson as dean of men at the institution. The appointment rests with Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of college. Gilbert Reen and George Warthen, of the college faculty, are temporarily handling jointly the duties of dean of men.

A report which might be used as a shopping list by bargain hunters in education was made public by the appointments office of Columbia University. One item of the report disclosed that college students spend more for laundry than for books.

It was revealed by the report that it costs more to become a dentist than any other product of the campus. Business and journalism run neck and neck farther down the scale, somewhat below optometry, which in turn is cheaper than medicine. The real bargain would seem to be law, which can be had for $288 a year less than dentistry.

The average cost of the various branches follows: Dentistry, $1558; medicine, $1525; optometry, $1390; engineering and chemistry, $1370; straight college education, $1350; journalism and business, $1310; law, $1270.

Large Elk Head Given Elk Home

On behalf of the record class initiated into the mysteries of the Gettysburg Lodge, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, last week, George Shields, of the Gettysburg Compiler, a member of the new class, presented the lodge with a large elk's head and antlers, together with two beautiful fawn and a fish-eating bird—the loon—Saturday.

All will be appropriately mounted and will decorate the walls of the Elk's lodge room, it is announced by the officers.

Smiles Way Around World

You do not need a guide, you do not need to know any foreign language to make your way around, according to Miss Nellie Lee Holt, of Falls City, Neb. She explained her secret when she arrived in San Francisco on the last lap of a 40,000-mile cruise: Just smile. Her pretty smile won her courtesies in foreign lands that were denied to potentates, she said.

WOMAN ADMITS HUSBAND WAS SLAIN BY LOVER

Wanted To Marry Other Man; Accused Slay-er Is Held By Police At Syracuse.

(By Associated Press.)
New York, March 21.—Mrs. Ruth Snyder today asserted in a statement to police that Henry Judd Gray, now under arrest in Syracuse, had murdered her husband, Albert Snyder, art editor of a magazine, in order that she might be free to marry her.

Press dispatches from Syracuse say Gray was in that city last night.

According to the alleged confession, Mrs. Snyder said that Gray was concealed in their home, when she and her husband and their 9 year old daughter arrived early Sunday morning from a card party.

Gray, according to the confession, beat Snyder to death and then wound a picture wire around his throat. After the murder Gray downed Mrs. Snyder in order to throw an aspect of burglary over the crime.

Wanted To Marry Lover
Police said Mrs. Snyder told them she had known Gray for two and one-half years and that she wanted her husband out of the way in order that she might marry him.

Snyder was found strangled to death with picture wire at his home in Queens Village Sunday. His wife, Ruth, had been bound and gagged but was unhurt.

The crime was discovered by their 9-year-old daughter, Lorraine. Awakened by her mother's faint tapping at her bedroom door, the child saw her father dead in bed, the wire tightly bound around his throat. Marks on the head showed he had been beaten. Snyder's loaded revolver lay under his pillow.

Revenge, Say Police
The police said they were certain the crime was one of revenge. They questioned two women and five men and said they also would question guests at a party the Snyder's attended Saturday night in a neighbor's house. They had been told there was quarrelling at the party, but that it was harmless.

On regaining consciousness, Mrs. Snyder told the police she and her husband returned home at 1:35 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Snyder retired immediately.

REV. CATHERMAN TO RETURN HERE

Three Changes Made in Pastors of County Churches at District Conference.

The Rev. C. F. Catherman will return as pastor of the Gettysburg Methodist Episcopal church, but three pastoral changes in Adams county were announced at the annual conference of the Central Pennsylvania district now in session at Lock Haven, according to an Associated Press dispatch from that place this afternoon. Appointments for the Central Pennsylvania district were read late this morning as the conference entered its closing hours.

The Rev. Henry Kiessel, pastor of the York Springs church, was transferred to Littlestown, to succeed the Rev. B. L. Stenger, whose new pastorate was not stated.

The Rev. Joseph K. Stoutt was named as pastor of the New Oxford-Fairfield-Orrtanna charge, succeeding the Rev. J. W. McMorris. The press dispatch did not give the Rev. Mr. Stoutt's last pastorate, nor the new field for the Rev. Mr. McMorris.

The Rev. S. J. Pittenger was named pastor of the York Springs church, succeeding the Rev. Mr. Kiessel.

Other changes in this vicinity include the Rev. J. H. Greenwald, Hanover; the Rev. Charles C. Brewer, Mount Holly, and the Rev. W. T. Ruth, Mercersburg.

The Rev. Dr. Morris E. Swartz, of York, former superintendent of the Harrisburg district, was named district superintendent at Sunbury, succeeding the Rev. Dr. J. E. A. Bucke.

Among the eight ministers to be ordained as deacons in the church, the step below full ordination, at the Sunday session of the convention were the Rev. Mr. Kiessel and the Rev. Mr. Stenger.

The minimum salary for Methodist ministers in the Central Pennsylvania Conference was increased to $1500 per year at the business session of the conference Saturday afternoon. Formerly it had been $1400.

K. OF C. OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

W. A. Conlon, of Pittston, Is Principal Speaker at Celebration Held Sunday.

"The soul of the nation is the constitution and not the 'almighty dollar,' as a stranger to these shores might be led to believe from reading the everlasting controversy over efficiency and economy," W. A. Conlon, of Pittston, past district deputy of the Knights of Columbus, told a large body of men who celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the order, in Xavier hall Sunday afternoon.

"When the foreigner comes to this country and applies for citizenship papers he is given a test to determine his knowledge of the English language, but he should also be given a test to learn if he is willing to lay down his life for the tenets set forth in the constitution, that all men are created free and equal, that equal justice should be given to all and the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness is meant for all," Mr. Conlon added. He interpreted the real meaning of Americanism as the constitution as it was originally applied.

P. A. Kennedy, past state deputy of the order, also delivered an address in which he stressed the necessity of religion going hand-in-hand with the education of the child.

The meeting was open to all and a number of visitors from Chambersburg, Harrisburg, Fairfield, McSherrystown and Harrisburg attended the celebration. In the evening a meeting was held at the lodge rooms for the members only and Mr. Conlon again lectured. In his evening talk he decried the prevalence of divorce and the breaking up of so many homes.

A luncheon was served at the home.

CARS COLLIDE EARLY SUNDAY

Machines Both Badly Damaged But Occupants Escape Unhurt in Crash Near York Springs.

Two machines were badly damaged, but none of the occupants was injured, when the cars collided on the Harrisburg road, one mile north of York Springs, early Sunday morning. The accident is said to have been precipitated by one driver being blinded by the head lights of the other machine.

Milton A. Jacobson, Harrisburg, and W. H. Conrad, Lancaster, were the drivers of the respective machines.

The front end of Jacobson's car and the rear end of Conrad's machine were so badly damaged that both automobiles had to be towed from the scene of the accident. Conrad's car was brought to the Gettysburg Buick company garage and Jacobson's machine was brought to the H. and H. machine shop.

SHANGHAI FALLS; TROOPS LOOT CITY

Retreating Army Breaks Through Barricade; 4 British Soldiers Are Wounded.

(By Associated Press.)
Shanghai, March 21.—Chaos reigned in Shanghai tonight after the fall of the city to the Cantonese this morning.

Rioters ran loose in the native quarters all day and tonight a band of Chinese troops apparently attached to the retreating northern army broke through the barriers to the north of the international settlement and began looting.

A British armored car rushed up in response to a police call for aid. The car was subjected to a continuous machine gun fire. A lieutenant, a corporal and two soldiers were wounded.

French outposts on the furthermost border of the French concession had a brush with a small detachment of Chinese troops this afternoon. Shots were exchanged and the Chinese were driven off.

Just prior to the nationalist advance into the city 1,500 United States marines marched through the principal streets with full field equipment, steel helmets, fixed bayonets and machine guns. The marines returned to their ship immediately after the parade.

FISHER SILENT ON ELECTION BILLS

Declares "Too Much Misinformation Given Out From Unofficial Sources," on Return.

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, March 21.—Governor Fisher upon his return to the capitol today from a week-end visit, spent at the Rolling Rock club, near Ligonier, declined to discuss his election revision bills but said he would insist upon the administration gasoline tax bill being reported from committee.

The governor said there was no political significance in his visit to Westmoreland county, that he was the guest of R. B. Mellon and that W. L. Mellon, chairman of the Republican committee, merely rode as far as the club with him and yesterday went on to Pittsburgh.

"There has been too much misinformation given out from unofficial sources," the governor said. "It is time that the public has the facts and knows the consequences of whatever action may be taken."

CALVIN ALTLAND DIES SUDDENLY

Calvin Altland, son of the late Peter and Mary Altland, East Berlin, died suddenly at the county home, about 3 p. m. Sunday. Mr. Altland had previously eaten a hearty dinner, a short while after which he became suddenly ill and died. Dr. E. A. Miller, Adams county coroner, was called and conducted an inquest. Death was found to be due to a condition of the heart.

The body was taken to East Berlin where it will be prepared for burial. Mr. Altland is survived by one brother, Frank Altland, Thomasville, and one sister, Miss Mary Altland, York.

Funeral services at the home of the brother, Frank, at Thomasville, at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, with concluding services in Holtzschwamm church by the Rev. G. W. Enders, Jr., pastor of Shiloh Lutheran charge. Interment will be in the cemetery adjoining the church.

TEACHER'S PAY IS WITHHELD

Carroll County Board Refuses to Pay Salary While Position Is in Dispute.

The Carroll county school board is withholding the pay of Miss Theresa Nicht, who was deposed as principal of the New Windsor elementary school, it was learned Sunday. The board now is considering Miss Nicht's case as the result of charges of religious intolerance which were brought against those who petitioned for the teacher's removal.

Although Miss Nicht should have received a pay check on March 10, she has not received it as yet, her counsel, State Senator Harry O. Lvin, said Sunday.

Mr. Levin asserted that he had corresponded with Maurice S. H. Unger, superintendent of Carroll county schools, in regard to Miss Nicht's failure to receive her pay until she consented to take charge of the one-room school at Louisville, to which she was transferred two days after she had been removed as principal of the New Windsor School.

Mr. Levin said the reason Miss Nicht was not teaching at the Louisville school was that he had advised her not to do so on the ground that she would be surrendering her rights. According to the attorney, Mr. Unger has advised his client through him that as long as Miss Nicht was unable to teach because of sickness her pay would be forthcoming, but that the board would not pay her while she remained away from the school on the advice of counsel. Mr. Unger declined to discuss the case last night.

Timely News Items Of Agricultural Extension Service

To brood chicks successfully under artificial conditions, it is necessary to have good equipment, says County Agent Underwood. The equipment for successful brooding consists of brooder house, brooder, hoppers and fountains.

Brooder houses should be large enough for the number of chicks to be brooded and also for the caretaker to conveniently work in them. It is generally recommended that a house 8 by 12 feet or 10 by 12 feet is large enough for 300 chicks while one 10 by 14 feet or 12 by 16 feet is sufficient for 400 to 500 chicks. Unless the poultryman is experienced in brooding, not more than 300 chicks should be brooded at one time.

Other essentials of a good brooder house are ventilation without drafts and the admission of plenty of sunlight. County Agent Underwood can supply plans for the construction of the recommended type of brooder house.

Personal taste determines largely the type of brooder to be used. Both oil-burning and coal-burning brooders give good satisfaction. A 52-inch hover will brood 300 chicks and a 58-inch canopy will care for 500 chicks. Cheap brooders do not pay, because they require too close attention and often they last but one season.

Feeding equipment need not be expensive. In fact, only fountains have to be bought. During the first few days of feeding, egg case flats are ideal, a clean one being used for each feeding. With increase size of chicks, mash hoppers are necessary. A convenient home-made hopper for day-old chicks is an open box 2 1/2 inches deep, 6 inches wide, and 30 inches long. Three or four such hoppers will provide plenty of feeding space for the chicks. It is important to have plenty of hoppers and fountains so that all of the chicks can get all they want to eat and so that the equipment may be easily cleaned and disinfected.

Free Course in Cow Testing
To train cow testers for a dozen positions in Pennsylvania associations, a short course will be conducted at the Pennsylvania State College, March 28 to April 2, by C. R. Gearhart, supervisor of cow testing association work in the state.

Taking samples, testing, keeping records, feeding, care and management will constitute the major part of the week's studies. The work of the course will be very practical, and no tuition or fees will be charged, transportation and living expenses being the only cost to students. According to Gearhart, young men who have a high school education and some practical dairy experience are preferred.

BAIR'S BODY TO BE SENT HOME

Grave of Hanover Hero Is Found in France After Exhaustive Search by Army Officials.

After an exhaustive search of more than seven years, the remains of Sergeant-Major Harold H. Bair, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bair, Hanover, who was killed in action on Sunday, September 9, 1918, in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne, have been found in an isolated grave in the Commune of Nantillois, France, near the spot where he fell, the victim of a bursting German shell.

Information that the body had been located was contained in a letter from the office of the quartermaster-general of the war department at Washington received by Mrs. Bair, mother of the sergeant-major. The letter, dated March 11, was read to the members of Harold H. Bair post, No. 14, American Legion, Hanover.

The remains of the hero for whom the Hanover post was named now lie in the mortuary of the Meuse-Argonne American cemetery, pending the receipt of officials there of instructions for the disposition of the body. Mr. and Mrs. Bair have notified the war department of their desire to have the remains sent to the United States, which is expected to be fulfilled during the summer.

SYNOPSIS

John Ballard, a strapping youngster, leaves his native town of Ventnor to work his way through college. He has been left poor by the same unkind fate that deprived him of his father, in a railroad crossing accident under circumstances which preclude a suit, and his mother, who died of grief. Phil Hardin, son of the President of the road which deprived John of fortune and family, leaves town on the same train, also bound for college. He is friendly, but John knows full well the gap between himself, a poor working student, and Phil, a wealthy idler.

At Newton things went much as John thought they would. He had arranged to find certain work before he went to college at all; could not have gone, even with the scholarship he had won, unless he had been sure of earning some money.

Of Phil, save for an occasional glimpse in a classroom, he saw nothing. Phil fell, at once, into a fast set. In college men form groups, as they do in any other social organization, and Phil's friends in his class had been made, largely, during his preparatory school days. As a matter of course Phil was asked to join the leading fraternity.

Phil was, and with reason, popular in college. He was good looking. He had money, and spent it freely and liberally. He had the fastest car belonging to any stu-

And that night, for the first time, Phil Hardin stood in the door of John's room, grinning. "You old bum!" he said. "Why aren't you out celebrating?" "Too tired!" said John, with a smile. "How are you, Phil?" "A lot you care! Why haven't you ever been to see me?" John smiled his slow smile. "I don't know," he said. "Why haven't you been to see me?" Phil smiled back. "Let's call it quits," he said. "Anyway, better late than never. Look here—my car's outside. Come along—there's a crowd that wants to meet you. We're having a party. Do you good."

He saw her, a gay, lovely, laughing girl, the minute he went into the room where the party had gathered—in the home of the Wares, the biggest house in Newton. And he fell in love with her in that first glimpse he had of her; knew, in that moment, that she was the one girl in the world for him.

He saw little of that night. He met her; that was about all. He had never learned to dance; he had no small talk; there was little about him, indeed, to attract a young girl, used to the gayety, the social accomplishment, of men like Phil Hardin. Yet Viola was more interested in John, even that night, than he dared to think was possible. She liked his shyness; she saw in him a quality different, more significant. He was the sort of man it seemed to her, likely to go far; likely to make something of his life.

But it was Phil who really interested John that night. For-dent, and was always game for a trip to town or to some nearby roadhouse. He sang well, and played the banjo like a professional; consequently he made the musical club at once, and went on all its trips.

"Look here—you've got the idea all wrong," he told John.

Phil found his studies easy, also—too easy, indeed, for his own good. He learned that he could cut classes and neglect his work, and still, by concentrating for a few days near the end of term, make up for lost time and come through his examinations with flying colors. Life, for Phil, became one of his very cleverness and facility; became a round of pleasure; he had nothing to make him take it seriously. Occasionally a professor warned him that the day of reckoning was bound to come; that, sooner or later, he must settle down to work. But, though he always listened respectfully, he laughed as soon as he was with his cronies again.

John, on the other hand, had to work hard. He was proud; he would accept no hospitality he could not return. Invited to join a fraternity, he refused—and was too proud, mistakenly, to say that it was because he was too poor. Lacking, almost entirely, the superficial cleverness of Phil, it was not always easy for John to keep up with his work. He always passed, but he had to plod to do it. And he made few friends; but those he did make were good ones.

Only in his senior year did John finally go out for football. In that year football at Newton was at a low ebb. The big game with Marston had been lost for three years in succession; the material this year was poor and another disastrous season loomed. And John, by this time, had found better jobs. He was just able to spare the time. To the surprise of coaches and students John, from the first, made good. Not a brilliant player he supplied an element of steadiness badly needed in the line, and in the final game of the year he rose to great heights. It was he who, in the last minute of play, blocked a Marston kick and fell on the ball a yard from the goal line, so that the touchdown which followed, winning the game, was really due to him. For the first time in nearly four years the whole college rang with his name.

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

The Greeks.—A public meeting of citizens of the borough of Gettysburg was held at the court house on Wednesday evening last, in pursuance of public notice, for the purpose of adopting preparatory measures for relief of the Greeks. Alexander Russel, Esq., was called to the chair and H. H. Harper appointed secretary.

After an interchange of opinion on the subject, it was on motion, Resolved, That a committee of five persons be appointed to solicit contributions from the inhabitants of the borough, to be forwarded to the chairman of the Greek committee in Philadelphia.

And G. Smyser, J. B. McPherson, T. Stevens, J. F. Macfarlane and J. L. Fuller, Esq., were appointed said committee.

It was also, Resolved, That it be recommended to the different townships of this county to hold meetings for a similar purpose.
R. G. Harper, secretary; A. Russel, chairman.

Married.—On Thursday last, by the Rev. William Paxton, Abraham Scott, Jr., of Hamilton township, to Miss Rachael Cobean, daughter of William Cobean, of Cumberland township.

On Thursday, the 18th inst., by the same, John Hayes to Miss Anne McMillan, daughter of William McMillan, both of Hamilton township.

On the same day by the Rev. William Runkle, Daniel Benner, of Straban township, to Miss Mary Colestock, of Mount Pleasant township.

On Wednesday last, by the Rev. Mr. Melzheimer, Joseph Little to Miss Hannah Hahn, both of this borough.

On Thursday last, by the Rev. Mr. Herbst, David Harper to Miss Elizabeth Schoener, both of this borough.

Died.—On Friday night last, Robert T. Gettys, son of Col. James Gettys, deceased, of this borough, aged about 18 years.

Dentistry.—J. Walker respectfully informs the citizens of Gettysburg and its vicinity, that he will stop the 9th, 10th and 11th of April at James Gourley's, in Gettysburg; the 12th and 13th at William Walker's in Straban township, and will be prepared to repair the loss of teeth in the most approved manner; also file, remove tartar, and stop the cavities of teeth with neatness and ease.

The Legislature of Pennsylvania was, at the last accounts, busily engaged in discussing the canal bill. The first section of the bill, which makes provision for the commencement of the three routes, has passed in committee of the whole. This may be considered an evidence of the final passage of the bill. We do think they are progressing too rapidly for their means. It is evident from the small majority in favor of its passage that no single route could have been carried; and rather than lose one they will make all—with what consequences, it is for time to discover.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

On Monday evening last the Whigs of the borough settled on the following ticket to be supported today. The polls will be closed at seven o'clock.

Judge, Anthony B. Kurtz; inspector, David Sweeney, assessor, George H. Swope; assistant assessors, Robert Smith and John Houck; constables, Nicholas Weaver, Solomon Tipton.

Married.—On the 14th inst., by the Rev. Jacob Ziegler, James Myers, of Menallen township, and Miss Elizabeth Comfort, of Butler township.

On the 17th inst., by the same, Peter Hummer, of Tyrone township, and Miss Lydia Stouffer, of Virginia, formerly of Adams county.

On the 7th inst., by Rev. D. P. Rosenmiller, Elias Reitz and Miss Susanna, daughter of Benjamin Stone-sifer, both of Union township.

We are indebted to Keller Kurtz for a bottle of Keller's writing ink. We have tested it and can bear witness to its superiority. When first used it is of a greenish color, which may not suit the fancy of some, but it flows freely from the pen and in a short time becomes a beautiful black.

The "Star and Banner"—Is published every Friday evening in Carlisle street, two doors from the diamond, by D. A. and C. H. Buehler. Terms: If paid in advance or within the year $2 per annum—if not paid within the year $2.50. No paper discontinued until all arrearages are paid—except at the option of the editor. Single copies 6 1/4 cents. A failure to notify a discontinuance will be regarded as a new engagement.

Advertisements not exceeding a square, inserted three times for $1—every subsequent insertion 25 cents.

A Word to the Ladies.—A. B. Kurtz would respectfully inform the ladies of Gettysburg and vicinity that he has just received the largest and best assortment of bonnets ever offered in the county, which will be sold lower than by any other establishment. Call and see. No trouble to show.

A. B. K. would also inform the ladies that on Monday morning he will open a splendid assortment of dress goods, such as poplins, barege de laines, mous de laines, lawns, etc., which for low prices can't be beat.

It is stated that a number of ten and twenty dollar gold pieces are in circulation at Pittsburgh, having holes first bored through them, and then so nicely filled up as to render detection very difficult.

STERNER TO BE GIVEN TRYOUT

Leo "Mex" Sterner, the young pitcher of the New Oxford Athletic club, has been given a contract to try-out with the Hanover Raiders during the two-weeks training season.

Sterner has played in the Adams county league for the past two years and has made quite a name for himself. Sterner had to his credit during the past two seasons several two and three hit games against the St. Mary's club of McSherrystown and the Arentsville club. Sterner is a strong right-hand pitcher, towering six feet into the air and having a general displacement of 170 pounds.

New Oxford fans are pulling for their ace to come through in his first attempt in organized baseball.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SIDE-STEPPING THE DIFFICULT THING

THERE aren't very many of us who are courageous. The rare person is courageous.

We like to do the things that everybody is willing to do—especially if they have to. But how many of us are there who figure out the difficult thing first, face it, go through with it—and then pass on to the easier tasks?

The foundation for everything is always the most important. And if we school ourselves in the way that gives us courage for tasks far beyond any we have ever attempted, then we are able to go ahead with little fear in our hearts.

Who doesn't admire the one who is not afraid to stake all he or she has—"to gain, or lose it all"?

Every time you sidestep the difficult thing you make it harder than ever to face the same task again. But every time you make an attempt to go through with the difficult thing you assure yourself that it is possible. Your desires become accumulative.

As soon as you bury your heart in your work, no work is too difficult, even though every eye about you is one of discouragement.

Sometimes it may seem that the difficult thing is left to us alone, but if it is, that should be something to glory over rather than to be depressed by. It is a compliment to one to be told that you alone are the one to do the difficult thing.

You don't have to ask for volunteers to do the easy jobs.

AUNT JANE WORRIED

Aunt Jane was one of the worrying kind.
Early and late with a troubled mind
Fearing the worst, in her chair she sat
Grieving herself over this and that.

Aunt Jane's particular stock in trade
Was things of which she could be afraid.
There wasn't a horror of which she'd read
That ever escaped from her shaking head.

Murder, robbery, death at sea
Troubled and frightened her terribly.
Every possible evil which may occur
Was a terrible thing which might happen to her.

She feared death by trolleys, and
Death by fire,
Nothing but bad news came by wire,
And the curious thing about my Aunt Jane

Is all that she gathered from life was pain.
It never occurred to her once to think
That thousands of steamers at sea don't sink.

But a horrible fate was her life accursed,
She was doomed forever to fear the worst.
Never she looked to receive the best,
Always by gloom was her mind oppressed;

And at last death ended life's frightful round,
But not once was she murdered, or robbed, or drowned.

Snappy Paragraphs

The Mail Carrier passed the home of Jeff Potlock's this morning, and heard a terrible racket inside, but he reckons it was only some of the children staging a filibuster.

Yam Sims was humming a tune today and when asked why he was trying to sing, he replied that it was only his mind wandering around with a melody.

Slim Pickens, who has been intending to buy a new hat for the past several months, has gone ahead and bought one anyhow.

Little Jack Rabbit

by David Cory

As the little rabbit stood tiptoe on the roof of Mr. Muskrat's round-roofed mud house, a flock of wild geese honked far above his head and a number of fox sparrows suddenly took wing for the far Northland. They cared only for cold weather, and could stay no longer now that spring was on the way.

All of a sudden there was a wide ripple on the Old Duck Pond, and the next instant appeared the round, black head of Mr. Muskrat.

"Wonder where he is going?" thought the bunny boy, as the little hairy swimmer made his way to the dam and climbed up on a plank. There he sat for a few minutes until Mrs. Muskrat suddenly rose from the water with a fresh water clam in her mouth. No sooner had she scrambled up on the plank, than into the water he dived for one of these juicy mussels.

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit. "Muskrats are great clam diggers. I suppose after a long winter it is mighty nice again to be out from under the ice-bound pond."

All of a sudden a little voice went, "Peep, peep, peep!" and a tiny frog nosed his way up through the stiff, cold mud, almost bumping against a floating cake of ice.

"Spring, spring, spring!" he sang again and again. Yes, he did, this little frog called a Hyla. He knew that spring had come, although goodness knows! the weather was so chill. Some one had called to him way down in the mud that it was time to come out. And he had obeyed that sweet voice. He had heard the call of Mistress Spring.

"Oh, little Hyla," cried the bunny boy, happiness filling his heart, "are you sure that spring is here?"

"Peep, peep, peep!" answered the little frog, from the chilly waters. My, what a brave little heart he has. Like Happy Bluebird, he always tells us when spring is near.

"I'm going right over to see Uncle Lucky," shouted the little bunny. "I must tell him what you say," and away went the little rabbit, anxious to find the dear old gentleman bunny.

"Where are you going?" all of a sudden asked a voice and there on a tree stump stood Chippy Chipmunk in his striped fur coat.

"To tell dear Uncle Lucky that Mistress Spring is just 'round the corner," shouted back the bunny boy, as on he hopped, clipperty, clipperty, clipperty clop.

"I'm glad to hear such good news," cried the little chipmunk, hastening

THE EXECUTOR

I had a friend who died and he On earth so loved and trusted me That ere he quit this worldly shore He made me his executor.

He asked me through my natural life To guard the interests of his wife; To see that everything was done Both for his daughter and his son.

I have his money to invest And though I try my level best To do that wisely, I'm advised, My judgment oft is criticised.

His widow, once so calm and meek, Comes, hot with rage, three times a week And rails at me, because I must, To keep my oath, appear unjust.

His children hate the sight of me, Although their friend I've tried to be And every relative declares I interfere with his affairs.

Now when I die I'll never ask A friend to carry such a task, I'll spare him all such anguish sore And leave a hired executor.

(From the Editorial Page of The Gettysburg Times of March 14, 1927).

Enter-The Spring

RIDING on the winds of March, Spring enters our midst triumphant—weaving into the dull warp of Winter a rosy-hued woof. Like a beautiful peacock is this brilliant new Springtime, preening itself in the reflected glory of the new creations of Fashion. Whether it is on "The Avenue" or "Main Street," a subtle change has taken place, banishing a dignified mode for one far more youthful—and there you have the secret of Spring. Youth incarnate!

JUST so has Spring ridden into our store and with her breath of freshness has left her touch of brilliant hues on the myriad of new things arriving daily in every department. We have assembled a collection of fashion, whose smartness lies not in a radical change in silhouette but in the intricate manipulation of slenderizing and youthful lines developed in the loveliest of fabrics. From Gingham to Silks through the popular Rayon and Print pieces our fabrics range from the delicate pastel shades to the brilliant hues, they plead permission to enhance your appearance. The Gloves, the Hose are all a personification of Youth that we worship in Spring, but yet are suited for anyone, and so with the wonderful scarfs and hundreds of other "Tremendous Trifles" that so absorb the attention of Milady.

FORGET not the home in this Season of new and bright things, it too, must have its Spring dress to replace the drab one left by Winter. Visit these important sections of our store and inspect what Spring has brought.

SPRING is in the air, let it brush your cheek with freshness and spur you on to the new things you want.
